

DEDICATION

We, the Eighth Grade Class of 1987-1988, dedicate this year-book to Mr. Arlin Bauer who is the principal and a teacher of our school. We are grateful for all he has done for our Lutheran School in teaching, administration, and also in coaching these past ten years.

Mr. Bauer graduated from Concordia Teachers College in Seward, Nebraska, in 1966. In August of 1966 he accepted the position of teaching grades 3, 4, and 5 at Zion Lutheran School in Chebanse, Illinois. In January of 1977 he began his teaching ministry in Cole Camp where he assumed the position of principal and seventh and eighth grade teacher which he still holds at the present time.

God's blessings to you,
Mr. Bauer, as you continue to work in His Kingdom.

thank

APPRECIATION

We, the Eighth Grade Class, would like to extend this special appreciation to Mrs. Helen Harms, assistant cook, who has faithfully served our school for the past 23 years.

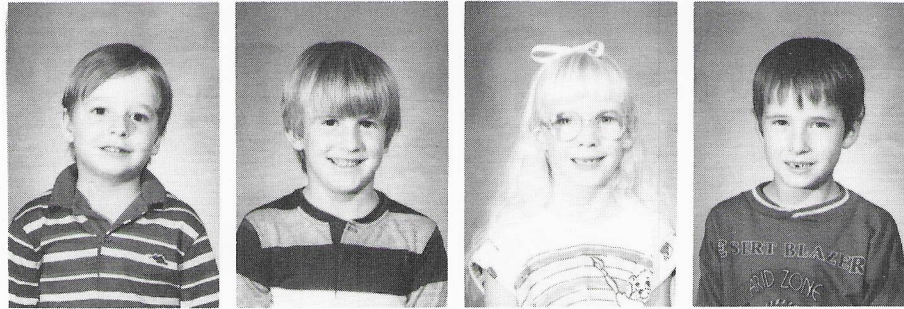

Thank you for a job well done and may God bless your efforts as you continue to serve in the future.

CLASS PROPHECY--2010

As Barry Weinberg, world-wide owner of Short and Fat Fashion, was watching his giant-screen T.V. in his living room, he saw Greg Bahrenburg and his grand prize cow, Florence, on the set. Seeing Greg after all these years he decided he would like to look up all his old school-mates. Greg's address was on the screen, so he was off.

Barry arrived in his private jet at Greg's house the next afternoon. As he walked the steps of his old buddy's house, he could still remember the funny things he and Greg had done. After he rang the doorbell, the door opened and Barry could not believe his eyes. "It's Brook Shields!" he exclaimed, as Greg came to the door and corrected him. "The name is Mrs. Brook Bahrenburg." They laughed all night talking about Greg's Fashion Cow Agency. Barry asked, "Have you heard from any of the other classmates?" "Yes," said Greg, "I sometimes see Angel Mullins or the last I heard Raetz. I think she's living in downtown New York in the condominiums across from the Third National Bank. Before they knew it, Barry had to leave.

At the condominiums in downtown New York, Barry was still thinking about the visit to Greg's as Angel came to her door. She invited him in and introduced him to her husband, Tom Raetz. She said her life is going good so far, but her three kids were outrageous. Barry looked at Angel in a funny way and said, "You look different." Angel replied, "I had plastic surgery on my lips last November." As Barry was leaving, Angel called out, "Oh, if you are looking for Rachel Heimsoth, my kids watch her on Pee Wee's Play House on Saturdays. I guess she took it over." "Thanks for the information," said Barry.

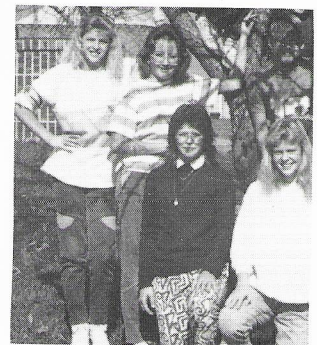

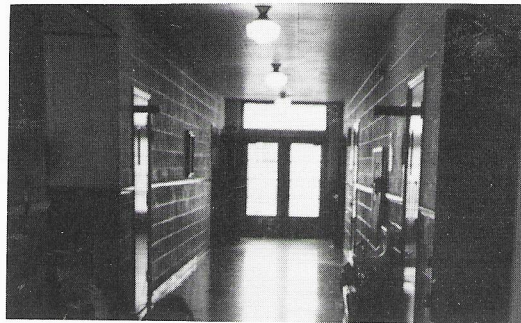

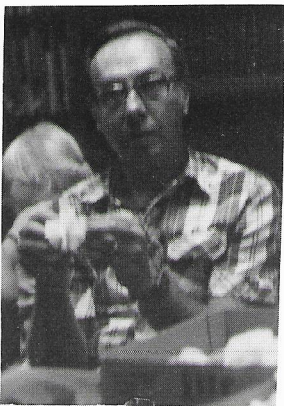

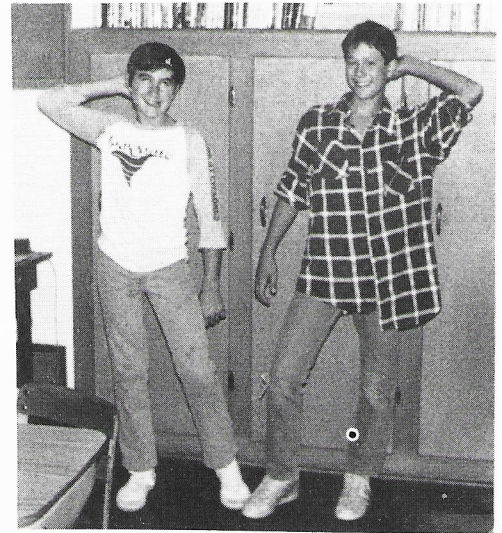

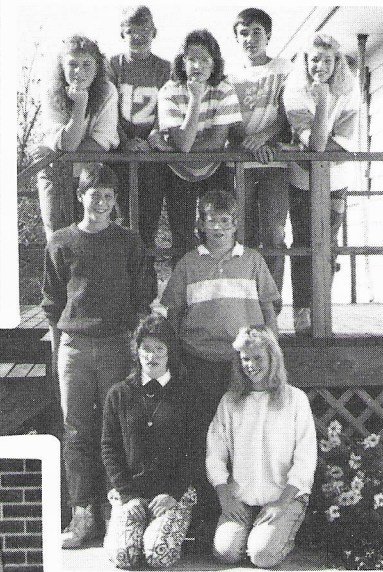

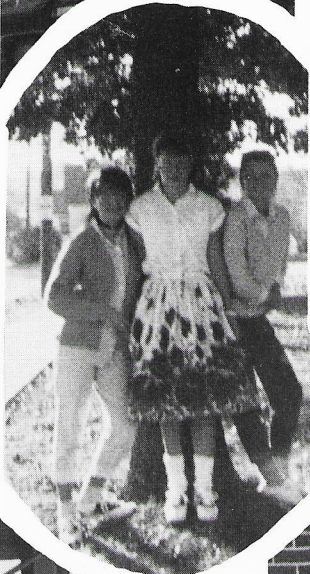

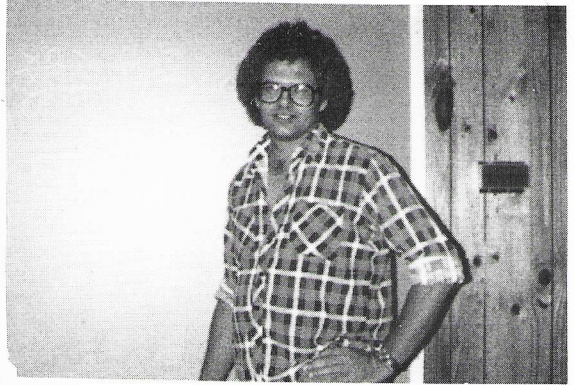

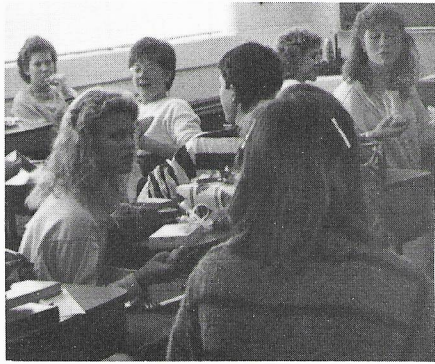

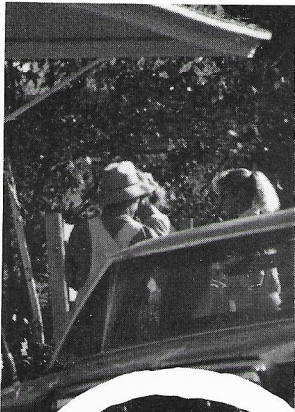

So Barry was off to Hollywood to the stage where Rachel works. As he approached the stage he heard a loud, rude voice. As he got closer, he realized it was Rachel, of course, same as always, telling everyone what to do. He could tell she was angry as she walked right past him. Barry said in a low voice, "Well, thanks." Rachel turned and replied, "Barry, what are you doing here?" "I was just looking up some old schoolmates of mine," he answered. As Barry and Rachel caught up on what's been happening over a cup of coffee, Barry learned that Rachel had received some paintings from Angie Karman in France. She is currently working on a masterpiece of the Eiffel Tower.

Three days later, Barry entered France. He went straight to the Eiffel Tower where he thought Angie might be and it wasn't long before he found her hard at work. After a short visit with Angie, he learned that Stephanie Roark lived not too far from her. Barry thought he may as well go on since Angie was so caught up in her painting.

As Barry drove up to Stephanie's house, he noticed there were kids everywhere. He found Stephanie on the porch watching the kids. As they talked about their lives, Barry learned that Stephanie had eight kids, was married, but lost her husband after seven years. She said she's been writing to Katrina Morarity for years but that if Barry wanted to see her, he would have to have a plane. She lives in the mountains with her husband, Kevin Harms. She seems to be enjoying her life.

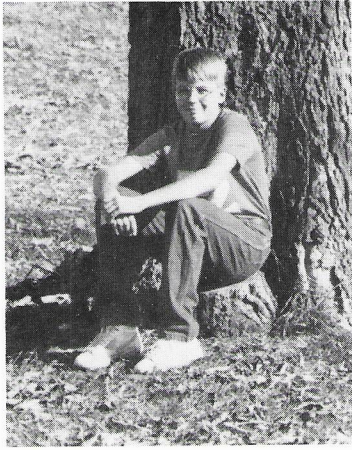

There were two other classmates Barry hadn't seen yet and that was Shannon Goosen and Chris Oelrichs who live in Swineville, Iowa. When Barry arrived at Shannon's house early in the morning, Shannon was feeding his pigs. Shannon is the president of the Hog Lovers of America. They took a drive in to town where they had coffee with Chris. The place was called "Mama's Kitchen" which Chris owned. Chris married Krista Eckhoff the year after graduation. Barry, Chris and Shannon really enjoyed talking about the old days.

As Barry began his flight home, he thought to himself, "It sure has been good seeing all of them again." Picking up a newspaper, he noticed that his old teacher, Mr. Bauer, had become a world-famous scientist. "Knowing Mr. Bauer, he will invent the next Nobel Prize."
