

DEDICATION

is a dedicated librarian who inspired many kids to read with her caring encouragement that she gave to all the kids. She has also managed to keep the library in good order despite all of the kids that go through it and scatter books around the shelves.

It is with great pleasure that we, the 8th Grade Class of 2010,
dedicate our yearbook to her.

2010 CLASS PROPHECY

Time certainly doesn't stand still, why it seems like only yesterday when the Lutheran School Association Class of 2010 graduated. Yet a decade has already passed by. Old Pastor Todd is looking forward to getting together with these fine young adults. Let me tell you a bit about where the last 10 years have taken these fine young people.

Connor Balke has certainly made the headlines as of late. Having gained worldwide notoriety as the newest rising star in the FIFA, Connor suddenly made an abrupt about face and changed careers. When asked about this Connor said, "I was traveling all over the world playing soccer but people kept asking me about my prowess at playing football. Not wanting to disappoint my adoring fans, I decided I had better start playing real football and took an offer to be the starting kicker for the St. Louis Rams. I have never been happier."

Dylana Fox recently made the cover of Cheertastic Monthly for her work with leading cheerleading clinics for underprivileged youth. She also stays quite busy with her duties as tour coordinator for the Justin Bieber "I'm No Teenager Anymore" tour.

Miranda Goetz certainly wasn't hard to catch up to. She is easily found as her newest belt buckle (won for being best barrel rider in the world) can be seen from the Space Station. When I asked her how she was adjusting to all the fame and fortune, she just grinned, giggled and blushed (some things never change.)

Drew Harms, you might be surprised to find, has taken a somewhat of an uncharacteristic move in his career. He was so motivated by the happenings at the 2010 National Youth Gathering in New Orleans that he has opened a chain of sleep clinics around the nation and speaks nationally on the value and necessity of a good night's rest.

Jacob Hickman, fueled by his love of pork, has opened a chain of all-you-can-eat restaurants called Hickman's. They are widely known as the "home of the throwed chop". Jacob has also kept up his avid desire to run as he recently won the

New Orleans Marathon. When I asked him what it was like to run over 26 miles he said "13 miles just isn't far enough, that's just when your side quits hurting, you might as well just keep on running."

Dusty McCubbins, as you may well know, has become world famous in the arena of raccoon hunting. IN fact, you may have noticed a resurgence of the coon skin cap which has become Dusty's trademark. And it is any wonder, with a special breed of coonhounds named the Dustyhound, his own line of raccoon calls, the newest video game version of Big Game Hunter named "Huntin' with McCubbins" and his nation wide speaking engagements, he has become a household name.

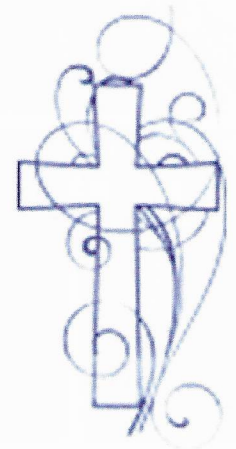

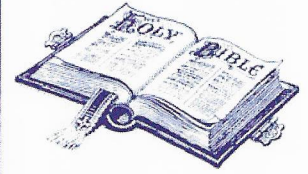

Marshal Meyer has now embarked upon a new venture. He is the founder of ESPN's new Extreme X-Games. Quite by accident he has stumbled across a fan favorite. . . a triathlon consisting of bmx bicycling, four-wheel racing and an academic bowl.

Tanner Oelrichs has returned to Cole Camp recently after his college basketball career with the Iowa Hawkeyes and a brief stint with the Washington Generals. Tanner states that he wanted to come back home and settle down. He is now coaching the Bluebird basketball team and penning his own self-help book for pre-teen boys, "How To Cope With Life When You Are Taller Than Everybody By The Time You Are In Eighth Grade". It looks to be a best seller.

J.T. Wilshusen has made quite a name for himself, both in the LCMS and around the world. Taking St. Peter's words, "Like newborn babies, crave pure spiritual milk, so that by it you may grow up in your salvation" to heart, J.T. has started a new ministry movement in the LCMS. Having been ordained in the pastoral ministry yet not wanting to give up on his roots as a dairyman, he started a church on an abandoned dairy farm in Wisconsin where the parishioners come and milk daily to provide for those who cannot afford milk for themselves, while J.T. provides them "pure spiritual milk" as he preaches the Word. Faith in action like I have never seen it before.
